J. Patrick O’Neal, M.D. is the Director of Health Protection in the Georgia Division of Public Health. He is a native of Rome, Georgia. He completed an undergraduate degree in pre-med at Davidson College, and received his medical education at the Tulane University School of Medicine. Following medical school, he completed a rotating internship at Providence Hospital, Portland, Oregon, prior to entering the United States Air Force for training in flight medicine. Dr. O’Neal served as a flight surgeon in Vietnam in 1970-71.

Upon his return to civilian life, Dr. O’Neal served in Macon, Georgia as the Director of the Outpatient Clinic at the Medical Center of Central Georgia for two years prior to entering the practice of emergency medicine at Dekalb Medical Center in Decatur in 1973. He practiced emergency medicine at that facility for twenty-nine years. During his time at Dekalb Medical Center he served as Medical Director for Dekalb EMS. For his final seven years at Dekalb Medical Center he served as the Regional Medical Director for EMS throughout the Greater Atlanta area. Throughout his career in emergency medicine he has been an advocate for trauma system development in Georgia. Upon retiring in 2002, he became the Medical Director for the Office of EMS/Trauma in the Georgia Division of Public Health. Currently functioning as the Division Director for Health Protection, he has oversight responsibility for Emergency Preparedness, EMS, Trauma, Volunteer Healthcare Programs, CAPUS, Environmental Health, TB, STD, Immunization, HIV, Epidemiology, Pharmacy, Refugee Health, the Georgia Public Health Laboratory and Injury Prevention.
